"Discovering ourselves & others through the exploration of languages, literatures, and cultures"

The UNCG Global Village

The UNCG Global Village has been designed for the benefit of students studying Chinese, French, German, Japanese, or Spanish, who wish to improve their language skills and also to explore the culture of languages with which they are less familiar. Under the guidance of native-speaking students living in the residence hall, you will be allowed to practice and improve your language abilities. You will participate in various events with an international focus (dinners, musical performances, films, etc.), and to interact with faculty whose teaching and research relates to aspects of international literature, language, or cultures.

ELIGIBILITY:

Open to first year students studying Chinese, French, German, Japanese, or Spanish at UNCG (with preference given to language majors or minors).

Benefits:

- Expand your knowledge of other cultures both inside and outside the classroom
- Guaranteed registration in specially designed courses related to the study of language and culture
- Participate in events with an international focus
- Live and collaborate with other students interested in language and culture
- Improve your language skills in one of the five languages represented in the UNCG Global Village under the supervision of a native-speaker living in the residence hall
- Benefit from contact with faculty from the Department of Languages, Literatures, and Cultures outside the classroom

Required Courses:

Fall

- An introductory course offered in Languages, Literatures, and Cultures
- One language course (appropriate level)

Spring

- FFL 103: Service & Community
- One language course (appropriate level)
