Housing and Residence Life

PROFESSIONAL STAFF RECRUITMENT

From the Director

Greetings from UNCG!

Thank for your interest in joining the Office of Housing and Residence Life team. The Coordinator for Residence Life (CRL) is an integral part of our diverse, innovative, and responsive team of professionals that serve our residential population of over 4,500 dynamic and engaged residents. Our twenty-five residential communities thrive on quality interactions in a learning-centered environment. It is our goal that our CRLs experience a similar professional experience in their work in our department. Our department is committed to helping each CRL reach their fullest potential through high quality and intentional training, deliberate professional development planning, and support to be engaged in a variety of ways.

I invite you to visit our department's website to learn more about our department's mission, vision, and goals. Our department is proud to "live" a number of core values including inclusiveness and diversity, community, personal growth, and teamwork. The Office of Housing and Residence Life is home to seventeen diverse Living-Learning and Themed Communities that include three residential colleges and interests ranging from service to sustainability. UNC Greensboro is a learner-centered public research university steadfast in its focus on service and social justice. UNC Greensboro's student body is the most diverse within the University of North Carolina system with students of ethnic minorities comprising 26% of the 18,000 students enrolled. Greensboro is part of the Triad region of NC -- home to over 1 million citizens. Greensboro boasts a number of historical significances including being the site of the International Civil Rights Museum home to the Greensboro Four, a watershed moment in the Civil Rights movement. Greensboro is centrally located within the state and less than three hours from the statuesque mountains and calming shores of the Tar Heel state.

If you think you would be a great fit for our department, I encourage you to obtain more information about our Coordinator for Residence Life position and our department via our website. Hopefully you can see yourself making a difference here. Thank you for your time and interest in our position.

Take care,
Timothy Johnson, J.D.

"I've enjoyed having my CRL as an instructor. It's better than having a regular teacher. The fact that I can go downstairs and have a regular or serious conversation makes the relationship easier and less intimidating for the student."

-DARYNE JENKINS

Academics

- Teach two classes
- Assist with course development
- Facilitate seamless learning in and out of the classroom
- Mentor students
- Coordinate a Living-Learning community (LLC)
- Help to develop an LLC
- Collaborate with faculty partners and the Office of Learning Communities

Housing and Residence Life offers a wide variety of Living-Learning programs: Lloyd International Honors College, Warren Ashby Residential College, Cornelia Strong College, Lone Grogan College, Make a Difference House, Leaders Emerging and Developing (LEAD) and the First Year Experience (FYE) program are just a few. Each program provides students with a unique opportunity to bring faculty into the residence hall, expound on personal interests, and make a lasting impact on UNCG's community.

Progressive Southern City

Greensboro is located in an ideal location to explore all the southeast has to offer. Greensboro is just a short drive from the mountains of western North Carolina, the beaches of eastern North Carolina and larger cities such as Charlotte and Raleigh. Greensboro is also the halfway point between Atlanta, GA and Washington, DC and is linked to both via the interstate system, train, and direct airline flights.

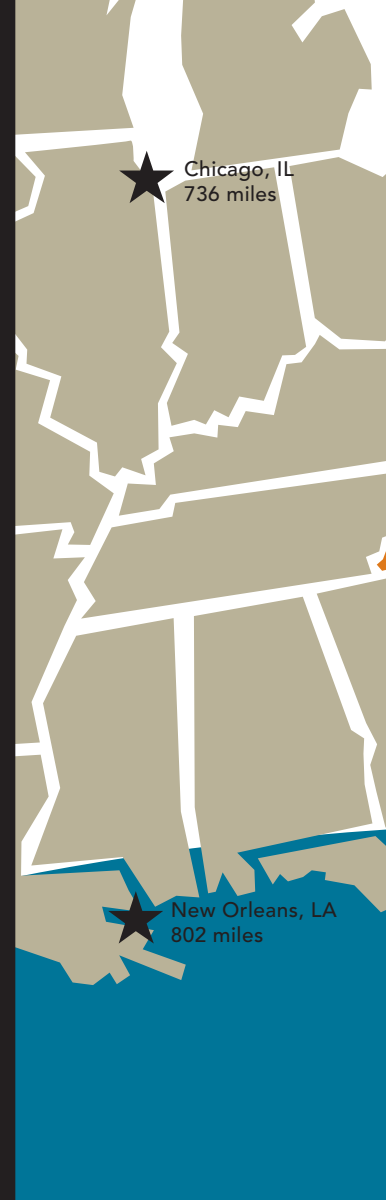

Greensboro boasts a vibrant downtown, many parks and neighborhoods full of trees and bike paths, and a high concentration of higher education institutions lending to an educated populace and progressive environment.

Volunteer and Recreation Opportunities

Involvement and recreation opportunities in Greensboro are extensive as are shopping opportunities including the Friendly Center and Four Seasons Center. For outdoor enthusiasts, the Greensboro Watershed Trails offer 42 miles of natural surface trails and the Greensboro Arboretum showcases the regions biodiversity. Volunteer opportunities are numerous, particularly popular with our staff is the Guilford County Animal Shelter.

Birthplace of Civil Rights Movement

Greensboro has a rich and diverse history and is most famous for being the starting point of the sit-in movement often regarded as the start of the civil rights movement. Today, the original site of the sit-ins is preserved as the Smithsonian's International Civil Rights Museum.

- Easy access from I-40 and I-85
- Close to the Piedmont Triad International Airport; Major Airlines: Delta, American Airlines, US Airways, United
